

Website Purpose Summary

The purpose of my website is to showcase both who I am as a person and as a developer. I'd like the website to illustrate my resumé, projects, contact information, and possibly relevant classes I've taken. I also want it to include my education, work, and volunteering history. Additionally, I would include my contact information, as well as links to my github and social accounts. Furthermore, I intend to include my hobbies (ones that do not pertain to computer science); for example, I made various artworks using photoshop, and have done some photography in the past. I'd also like to utilize my site to show off my gaming hobby; I'd like it to include games I've played, games I'm currently playing, and games I intend to play. In sum, my goal is not only to market myself professionally (though I admit that I prioritize that), but to also show some personality behind my technical experience.
